

Educating His Bride

From college coed to a professor's naughty bride...It's the 1950s. Never much interested in her studies, Margaret Atwater attends college hoping to graduate with a Mrs. degree instead of a bachelors. When she catches the eye of English Professor Henry Thurston, she's thrilled to marry him, drop out of school, and begin a new life as a married woman and faculty wife. However, Henry is a kinky man who has much to teach his eager young bride--in, and out, of the bedroom. As Mrs. Henry Thurston, Margaret's sexual education has just begun.

Educating His Bride is a short novelette originally published in the anthology Correcting the Coeds.
